■ Remember this name: Jerome Katzman.

Jerome Katzman is the 32-year-old son of Sam Katzman, and Sam Katzman is the movie producer remembered for such epics as "Rumble on the Docks," "Hot Rod to Hell," "Riot on Sunset Strip" and "For Singles Only."

■ Jerome practiced law until recently, when he decided to follow his father's footsteps and become a film producer. His first effort stars Jennifer Jones and is titled, "Angel, Angel, Down You Go." Sam gave the lad a hand by acting as executive producer on the movie.

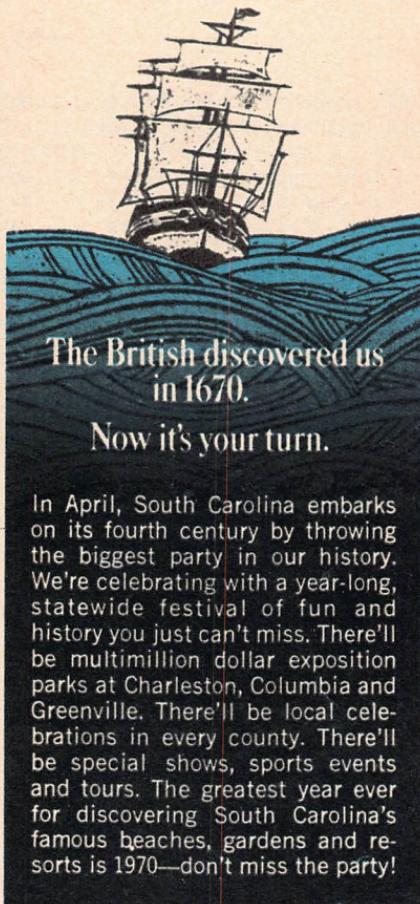

The picture, according to the Hollywood Reporter's William Tusher, "is a putdown of the Establishment and just about all the cherished mores of Western society. It mocks motherhood, the flag, sexual fidelity, orthodoxy and fatherhood. It wallows in unrepentant murder, corruption, seduction, flagellation and homosexuality. It is, Katzman proposes, a satanic distillation of the latent evil in all people, and it explains—at least to his satisfaction—why films of putdown, brutality and erotica have become commercial pacemakers."

■ All this because, says Katzman film, "I feel a strong conviction that pictures today have to throw away all the rules to get people away from the tube." The "tube" is Hollywood for television.

But there is more than merely getting people away from television behind this young man's enthusiasm for filthy movies. "I think the basic nature of man is not good, but bad," he says. "We (have to make films that) satisfy the baser appetites in man in order to have him do the good things that he does."

■ That's pretty clear. Man is essentially evil. He gets rid of that evil by watching depraved, revolting Katzman films. What's left is good. Ergo, Jerome Katzman is performing a public service by producing such movies.

And getting rich, too.

NEIL HICKEY REPORTS

This season's fourth National Geographic special examines the centuries-old David-and-Goliath struggle of "Holland Against the Sea." It's scheduled for April on CBS . . . Discovery '70 crews sacrificed a lot of sleep to film a program on New York City's sprawling wholesale food markets, which open in the wee hours of the morning. Viewers can catch the show on Jan. 11--at a much more reasonable hour.

A couple of CBS regulars are in line for their own network specials: DON ADAMS has one in February, and TIM CONWAY, who launches his new comedy series (co-starring his McHale's Navy crony JOE FLYNN) on Jan. 30, will have his special in the spring . . . NBC's First Tuesday will cover a DAVID and JULIE EISENHOWER look-alike contest, which is intended to unearth talented doubles for a projected movie about the couple . . . LIZA MINNELLI visits ED SULLIVAN Jan. 11, a week after NBC airs her first movie, ALBERT FINNEY's 1968 film "Charlie Bubbles."

Next to burgers, nothing's better than hot Cling Peaches.

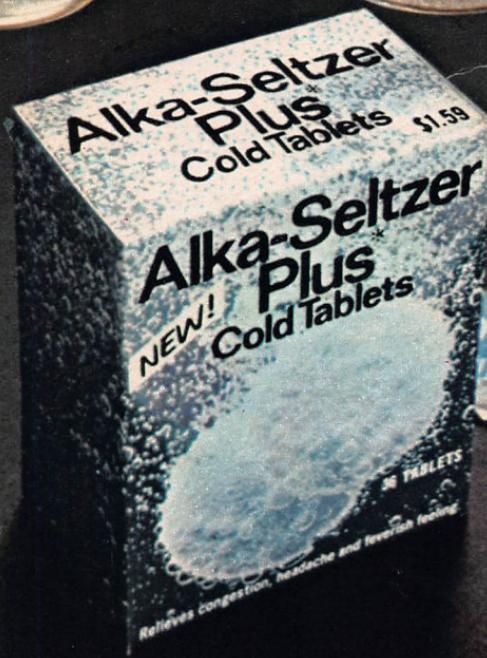

Did we say hot? We did indeed.

That's when Cling Peaches bubble with a tangy-sweet flavor that complements beef. And the thing about California Cling Peaches: they always hold their shape and color in heating. Just drain. Then broil them with the burgers for a few minutes.

It's that simple.

And that's another good thing about the whole idea.

Just in time for your first cold of the New Year. The effervescent cold tablet.

You'll probably like Alka-Seltzer Plus® Cold Tablets better than any other cold tablet you ever tried. Because besides a decongestant for stuffy sinuses and an antihistamine for runny noses, each tablet also contains aspirin for relief of headaches and feverish feelings.

As well as a lemony flavor to give it a good taste.

But what you'll really like about Alka-Seltzer Plus is the way it works. Fast. Because you take it just the way you take Alka-Seltzer. All dissolved and ready to go to work as soon as you swallow it.

That's why no other cold tablet can give you faster, more effective relief in so many ways.

And why should a nice person like you have to settle for less?

LOVE, AMERICAN STYLE

REVIEW

by Cleveland Amory

Remember the old story of the lecturer trying to tell about the difference between men and women, and the Frenchman from the back of the room shouting "Vive la difference!" Well, this show is different, and for so being, it deserves credit. Unfortunately, there is a difference between just being different and having distinction, and that Love, American Style does not have. Indeed, there's something about its very difference—having unrelated sketches of varying lengths with different actors—that makes it, even when acted by competent professionals, seem amateurish. Also, since even in the longest sketches we rarely get to know the characters except as caricatures, it is too often unbelievable. At its worst it is crude and offensively blue; at its best it too often leaves you only wanting more. Besides all this, the producers have seen fit to copy, in between the sketches, Laugh-In-style blackouts—to wit (and we'll warn you there isn't much), a bed at a bus stop, a bed being pushed up the street by two young men ("When we meet the girls, just act natural"), etc.

The very first episode offered us "Love and a Couple of Couples," in which a divorced man (Michael Callan) is preparing an engagement dinner, complete with ring, for his girl friend (Yvonne Craig), when up shows his ex-wife (Penny Fuller), who tries on the ring and can't get it off before the new fiancee arrives. More recently, an episode called "Love and the Shower" offered us a separated man (Henry Gibson) being given a shower by other divorced men, complete with a toaster, a cookbook and his-and-his towels, when, of course, in drops his separatee (Reva Rose). If it sounds like fun and games, it was all pretty unfunny and gamey. This was too bad, because all three of the other sketches in the "Shower" hour were good—"Love and the Dummies," with ventriloquists Paul Winchell and Shari Lewis; "Love and the Athlete," in which an East German runner (Pamela Curran) has to prove she's not a man to the satisfaction of two very funny men, Marty Allen and Eddie Mayehoff; and "Love and Mother," in which on the wedding night of Chris Connelly and Shelley Fabares, in pops the mother of the bride, Kay Medford, who has had a fight with Father (Morey Amsterdam).

A sketch like that reminds you of the late That's Life, with Robert Morse, and you only wish that one was still on, because it was a better show. The level of taste in Love, American Style varies as much as the level of humor. In "Love and the Watchdog," for example, wife Penny Fuller brings home a dog that husband Michael Callan doesn't like and carelessly allows to be stolen. The writer of this sketch obviously sees pet-stealing as a barrel of laughs—which is his problem and shouldn't be ours. On the other hand, the best all-around sketch we have seen so far was "Love and the Phone Booth," in which Peter Kastner did an excellent country boy to Pamela Austin's equally fine city girl. A couple like this we would watch every week. And we wish, in place of this show, we could.

REMEMBER 1969? HERE'S HOW IT LOOKED ON TELEVISION

By Roger J. Youman

It started routinely enough on Jan. 1, 1969—the Today show offered lectures on Leonardo da Vinci and drunken driving, Captain Kangaroo was visited by some animals, Ohio State rolled over USC in the Rose Bowl, Tab Hunter rode a surfboard in the evening's network movie, and Rodney learned that Betty had been seeing Steven in Peyton Place.

Before the year was over, however, America's television screens had been filled with a multitude of flickering images that were anything but routine. One of them, indeed, was as spectacular a sight as human eyes had ever seen—men were walking on the moon! It was a television experience that nothing could match. But many things besides lunar strolls engaged the attention of U.S. television viewers during 1969.

It was, for one thing, the first year of the Nixon Administration, and the new President relied heavily on television as he attempted to rally support for his policies. It was the year, too, of the ABM debate, the Fortas and Haynsworth affairs, Chappaquiddick, Black Studies, the Mets and the Jets, the Chicago Eight, Moratoriums, the Silent Majority, Vietnamization, Song My . . . a 365-day chapter in the history of our world, recorded and interpreted by television newsmen (in a manner that provoked thunderbolts of condemnation from Vice President Spiro Agnew as the year drew to a rancorous close).

Meanwhile, inside television, there were less momentous developments. The Smothers Brothers and Peyton Place and The Late Show departed. Hee Haw and Sesame Street arrived (in separate packages). Turn-On got turned off in a hurry. Black performers were in. Violence was out. Doctors were back. The networks tried 45-minute shows and minimovies and three-headed series and Harold Robbins hanky-panky. Lana Turner, Debbie Reynolds, Bill Cosby and Leslie Uggams took a spin on the weekly-series merry-go-round.

Some innovations worked. As usual, most of them didn't. As the networks doggedly tried to drum up interest in their new and reconditioned wares, Nielsen arrived with the sobering news that, for an autumnal moment at least, the most popular program on the air was Gunsmoke, which has been around since 1955.

For better or for worse, that was 1969. The moments we are likely to remember longest are the human events that were captured by TV cameras, rather than the fictional creations of television itself. The next six pages, then, are a photographic rerun of 1969—a sampling of the year's most memorable episodes, as you saw them on your television screen.

Jan. 12: The New York Jets surprised everyone but Joe Namath and their euphoric partisans by beating the Baltimore Colts, 16-7, for the pro football championship. Here, NBC's end-zone camera replayed a Namath pass.

Feb. 5: Billy Schulman affectingly portrayed a retarded boy and David McCallum was his tutor in the prize-winning drama 'Teacher, Teacher' on NBC's Hall of Fame.

Jan. 20. Richard Milhous Nixon was sworn in as 37th President of the United States by Chief Justice Earl Warren, as Mrs. Nixon held the Bible.

Feb. 9: Shakespeare's 'A Midsummer Night's Dream' was brought to TV by the Royal Shakespeare Company and CBS. David Warner, Helen Mirren, Diana Rigg and Michael Jayston played midsummer lovers.

March 29: The funeral ceremonies following the death of Dwight D. Eisenhower were accorded five days of television coverage. This was the scene in Washington's National Cathedral.

April 4: The Smothers Brothers were smothered by CBS after a long battle over the content of their Sunday night series. Here, in the final moments of their last show, the boys said good-bye to all that.

April 18: Cornell University was the scene of the year's most unsettling campus disturbance, as television viewers saw armed black students evacuate a building they had occupied for 34 hours.

June 3: The new Chief Justice of the United States, Warren Burger, was introduced to the Nation on television by President Nixon.

July 1: The Investiture ceremonies in which Prince Charles formally became Prince of Wales were seen in the U.S. in a morning-long telecast, via satellite. Here, Queen Elizabeth receives a 'kiss of fealty' from her son.

July 21: Astronaut Neil Armstrong took 'One small step for a man, one giant step for mankind,' as a TV camera on the moon sent black-and-white pictures back to 500,000,000 people watching on earth.

July 25: Sen. Edward Kennedy went on television to talk about the incident at Chappaquiddick that beclouded his political future.

Sept. 5: An NBC special offered fascinating insights into the life and artistry of pianist Arthur Rubinstein.

Oct. 15: A series of organized antiwar demonstrations began quietly but impressively with a 'Moratorium Day.' A month later, more than 250,000 citizens followed up with a 'March for Peace' in Washington, D.C.

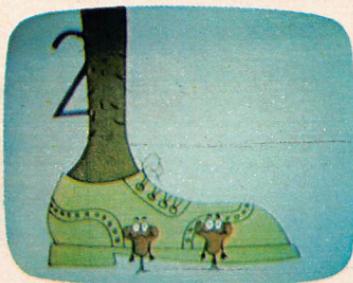

Oct. 16: The amazing New York Mets ended an amazing baseball season with an amazing five-game World Series victory over the Baltimore Orioles. Amazing plays, such as this bases-loaded Tommie Agee catch in the third game, produced the amazing result.

Nov. 3: President Nixon explained his Vietnam policy in his most important television address to the Nation.

Nov. 10: A hopeful experiment in preschool education began with the debut of NET's Sesame Street series.

Nov. 13: The three networks telecast Vice President Agnew's attack on their news commentaries. The speech, in Des Moines, stirred up a national controversy.

Nov. 19: Man revisited the moon. Here, Cmdr. Pete Conrad descended from his spaceship to the surface of the moon—just before the color camera broke down, preventing viewers from seeing the astronauts' two moon walks.

END

Net Commercials Up 50% in Four Years; 'Pollution' Charged

TV is approaching commercial "pollution," a prominent New York adman charged the other day in remarks at an Association of National Advertisers convention in Scottsdale, Ariz. In the last four years, Herbert Manlove found, the number of network commercials in an average month has jumped 50 per cent; in prime time local and network commercials have increased 41 per cent. "I ask you," he stewed, "what have we wrought?" At this rate, he feared, "nothing except more noise, more confusion—and as a concomitant a disbelieving, disinterested, turned-off public."

"J.T.", a Christmas-themed drama about a shy black boy in New York's Harlem, may take its place alongside "How the Grinch Stole Christmas," "Rudolph" and "Charlie Brown" as a yuletide TV perennial. Aired on a Saturday noon as the first of three "CBS Children's Hour" specials planned this season, the poignant story of a lonely youngster's befriending of an injured alley cat so touched numberless grownups (critics included) that CBS hastily booked an evening showing of the film in Gunsmoke time. Even before this repeat, however, CBS-TV president Robert D. Wood was elatedly predicting that "J.T." will be reshown "not only again next year, but for many years to come." Wood, incidentally, partly attributed a large viewer turn-out (about 15 million) for the Saturday midday debut of "J.T." to CBS's policy of permitting reviewers to prescreen shows and publish advance judgments. Despite adamant disagreement with the idea by ABC and NBC officials, CBS feels the pre-reviewing policy, launched last spring, has been eminently satisfactory. "We're going to continue it indefinitely," Wood promised. "We don't always get the kind of advance reviews we like, but on the whole we think the practice has been the smart thing to do."

That normally befuddled American, the income-tax figurer, faces even worse head-scratching than usual next spring: his familiar tax-return form has been elaborately overhauled. But at least he can look forward to some televised first aid from business columnist Sylvia Porter and ABC's economics editor Louis Rukeyser, who will offer a course in tax reporting beginning March 23. The three-parter will kick off a 26-week series of half-hour news specials on ABC, following the Monday Night Movie.

Walter Cronkite will be trekking down to the LBJ Ranch in Texas again soon after the first of the year to tape another round of conversations with former President Johnson. Present CBS plans call for four hour-long "LBJ" specials this season, with more to follow during the next several years, reviewing the ex-President's long political career. The first, on "Why I Chose Not to Run" last year, is scheduled this Saturday (Dec. 27) in Jackie Gleason's time. The second, coming up Feb. 6, will deal with "The Decision to Stop the Bombing" of North Vietnam.

Help!
The King and I
The Stooge
Gidget Grows Up
A Matter of Innocence
Koroshi
Five Weeks in a Balloon
The Law and Jake Wade

The reruns walk off with the honors on this network-movie week that starts off with a wow and winds up with a whimper that doesn't, hopefully, signal the coming year's cinema sound.

The second showing of Help! and the third of The King and I provide not only double helpings of delight but an illustration of what happened to movie musicals between the mid-Fifties and mid-Sixties. The 1956 Rodgers and Hammerstein work, directed by Walter Lang, is in the stage-derived tradition of lush sets and lavish production, glittering stars and meticulous plotting. The 1965 Beatles film, under Richard Lester's aegis, epitomizes mod madness on location and the sheer disorganization of now nuttiness. And part of the pleasure of reviewing them is to discover that age has nothing at all to do with our enjoyment of either or both.

Not so with much of the week's fare. To feel antique, subject yourself to The Stooge, a 1952 Lewis & Martin clunker that disappointed their fans then and will convince the kids that comedy styles have changed for nothing but the best since. And if you cherish the childhood of Hayley Mills, spare yourself A Matter of Innocence, a 1967 disaster wherein she solemnly devirginizes herself via a loveless affair with an Indian guide in Singapore. It makes her prettier and us grateful that Shirley Temple wound up in the

UN instead of in "Rain."

Gidget, that synthetic gadget of girlyness, winds up at the UN too, no less, in the week's minimovie, Gidget Grows Up, with Karen Valentine taking over where those starlets left off in the realm of the cutesy-poo. Television, alas, is resorting not only to Hollywood leftovers but even to its own. Koroshi is a feature film made out of two segments of the Secret Agent series that have not been shown in this country. But one could do worse than spend New Year's Eve with Patrick McGoohan on screen.

The New Year itself opens with options. Take Five Weeks in a Balloon straight and it's an insult to anyone over eight. Squint your eyes and bend your ear a bit and you'll find it a very pleasant anthology of Verne's exotic-adventure cliches, complete with a Disneylandish balloon, nice hammy actors and wooden extras and lines like "Infidels! You have dared to enter the Forbidden City of Timbuktu!" and "Kismet! We are doomed!" And you can take The Law and Jake Wade as a routine Western—or find particular distinction in Richard Widmark's charmingly psychotic villainy, Robert Taylor's grim-faced virtue and a rip-roaring Comanche attack. The choice, as always, is yours.

In some areas network movies may not be seen on the days indicated.

'Hans Brinker'

'To Save Tomorrow'

'Jazz at Tanglewood: The Modern Jazz Quartet'

Young People's Concert: 'Music for the Movies' (preview)

Brace yourself. This is the week we sweep out the old year (and decade) and swig in the new. Appropriately, two year-end specials offered a nostalgic backward glance and a hopeful look at tomorrow.

NBC's "Hans Brinker" was a two-hour Popsicle, short on figure eights and long on dramatizing 17-year-old Hans' efforts to persuade a noted surgeon to operate on his sick father. Mary Mapes Dodge's 1865 novel, a classic of the read-it-and-weep school of children's literature, was turned into a freely altered TV musical. The result was calculated to create either a lump in the throat or spasm in the stomach, depending on your tolerance for glossy portrayals of human beings acting like humane beings.

Among the dividends were a glistening re-creation of mid-19th-century Holland (courtesy of European locales), several Moose Charlap tunes and a likeable cast. Eleanor Parker was Hans' mother, Richard Basehart was the gritty surgeon and Cyril Ritchard was Cyril Ritchard. As Hans' beloved Annie, Sheila Whitmill was a disarming bundle of blushing femininity from the days before girls did emancipated things like smoke thin cigarettes. And Robin Askwith, ruddy in cheek, pure in heart, and compassionate in character, was an appealing Hans—just the stalwart lad for young viewers to emulate.

Those conditioned to the zip-zap-zowie style of Now entertainments may have found "Hans Brinker" considerably less than a Dutch treat. But coming as it did during the last gasp of the frantic Sixties, this TV musical struck us as a beguiling look at a bygone era.

In contrast, NET pointed toward the future with "To Save Tomorrow," a special 60-minute introduction to an eight-part series on rehabilitating the mentally ill. The basis for this grueling but encouraging documentary was the Singer Zone Center in Rockford, Ill., where staff members use verbal assault tactics to jolt their patients from psychological suicide to a satisfactory life in the outside world.

NET also offered a 60-minute concert featuring the Modern Jazz Quartet, whose blending of jazz and the classics yields a kind of be-bop baroque, a mesmerizing instrumental style.

This week, another concert—this one on CBS—hits a high note for 1969's musical specials: the first of the season's New York Philharmonic Young People's Concerts—"Music for the Movies," which we previewed. Aaron Copland discusses and conducts selections from his motion-picture scores, including the poignant theme from "Our Town," the rousing opener for "The Red Pony," and the ear-splitting suite based on the score from the arty flop "Something Wild." Our advice is to sit back, enjoy the music, and cross your fingers for 1970.

THE DECADE IN SPORTS

More than 100 of the decade's most exciting sports moments are relived in an action-packed review.

Baseball: the Mets win the Series; Mickey Mantle crashes his 500th homer; Roger Maris's 61st HR tops Ruth (with an asterisk); Ted Williams bows out with a four-bagger; pitcher Denny McLain wins 31.

Football: the Jets win the Super Bowl and prestige for the AFL; Vince Lombardi creates the Packer dynasty; stars like Gale Sayers, Joe Namath and O.J. Simpson excel in college, then join the pros; Michigan State and Notre Dame tie in their 1966 battle for No. 1.

And . . . Basketball: Bill Russell and the Celtics sparkle; so do Wilt Chamberlain and Lew Alcindor. Golf: Arnold Palmer and Jack Nicklaus soar; Roberto DeVicenzo signs an erroneous Masters scorecard. Boxing: Floyd Patterson KOs Ingemar Johansson; Sonny Liston KOs Patterson; and Cassius Clay rips Liston. Hockey: Montreal all the way. Tennis: Rod Laver reigns.

Track and field: long jumper Bob Beamon; distance runner Billy Mills; decathlon champ Bill Toomey; jumper Valeri Brumel; four-time Olympic discus gold-medalist Al Oerter; 3:51.1-miler Jim Ryun. Swimming: Don Schollander, Debbie Meyer. Skating: Peggy Fleming. Skiing: Jean-Claude Killy. (90 min.)

LYNDON B. JOHNSON: WHY I CHOSE NOT TO RUN

Special: President Johnson discusses his decision to leave the White House in this second of several interviews filmed at the LBJ Ranch (the first was broadcast last July).

Walter Cronkite questions the former Chief Executive about events and considerations leading up to his momentous announcement of March 31, 1968: "I shall not seek, and I will not accept, the nomination of my party for another term."

Widely held judgments about the roles that Robert Kennedy, Sen. Eugene McCarthy and others played in the decision are refuted by Mr. Johnson. As the interview progresses, he reveals a timetable that predetermined the announcement—a timetable established in 1964. The factors that went into this decision, as the President explains them, combine to alter the LBJ image. The impression that he is a man familiar with power is hardly diminished, but there's an added dimension in this interview: that the President was keenly aware of his limits and the extent to which he could lead America.

Also discussed: keeping Senator Kennedy off the ticket in 1964; Presidential candidate Hubert Humphrey's backing away from Administration Vietnam policy in 1968; and the Chicago convention. (60 min.)

Mahatma Gandhi (1869-1948) was a prophet of nonviolence. Commemorating the 100th anniversary of Gandhi's birth, Alec Guinness narrates this BBC profile of the man and his teachings, and their influence on present-day India. Films and archive photographs trace his career from his earliest arrest for civil disobedience in 1908 to his assassination in 1948: crusades for Hindu-Moslem unity, a decentralized village society, the abolition of untouchability and mass practical education. Among those assessing Gandhi's impact on today's India are Indian Prime Minister Indira Gandhi; Lord Mountbatten, the last English viceroy of India; and economist E.F. Schumacher. (60 min.)

YOUNG PEOPLE'S CONCERT

(C) 6:00 10

Special: Composer Aaron Copland opens this series' 13th season with a sampling of music written for non-musical movies.

Copland is well qualified to conduct this musical survey. In addition to his many symphonic works, he has composed scores for seven films. This special kind of background music must augment—but never intrude upon—the varied moods of comedies and dramas. Film clips and slides illustrate as Copland conducts the New York Philharmonic in selections from four of his films.

"The Red Pony" (1949), the story of a 10-year-old boy and his love for a colt. Copland's music includes "Morning on the Ranch," suggesting the "sounds of nature gradually waking up"; "Dream March," with the boy pretending to lead a procession of knights in armor; and "Circus Music"—this time he's a ringmaster.

"The City." (1939) A traffic-jam scene is shown, first with no sound and then with illustrative music.

"Our Town." (1940) "Grover's Corners" conveys the tranquility of a New England village.

"Something Wild." (1961) "Night Thoughts" expresses the emotions of a girl alone, locked in an apartment. "Music for a Great City" is a concert suite arranged from the film's score.

Producer-director: Emmy winner Roger Englander. (60 min.)

3 4 7 NBC NEWS SPECIAL (C)

Special: "White Paper: The Year of the Mayors" examines America's urban crisis, focusing on the results of the 1969 mayoral elections. Producer Fred Freed: "Although the results seemed mixed . . . the decisive pattern is polarization—and the issue is race, though it is hidden in all kinds of ways." Freed's report is divided into four segments: 1. Prologue: the loss of the new breed of mayor who came in with the New Frontier. 2. An examination of the Los Angeles campaign of conservative incumbent Sam Yorty and Thomas Bradley, a black former police officer. 3. Analysis of the patterns found in this year's urban mayoral campaigns. 4. "The politics of polarization" is examined as cameras focus on the Cleveland campaign of Carl Stokes. Written and directed Doctors Find Way To Shrink Hemorrhoids, Stop Itch—Relieve Pain IN MOST CASES.

Doctors have found a medication that in most cases makes it possible to actually shrink hemorrhoids. In case after case, while gently relieving pain and itching, reduction (shrinkage) took place.

The answer is Preparation H®. There's no other formula like it for the treatment of hemorrhoids. Preparation H also soothes inflamed, irritated tissues and helps prevent further infection. In Ointment or Suppository form.

6 NET PLAYHOUSE—Drama

Igor Stravinsky's 1918 ballet "The Soldier's Tale," a morality fable based on 19th-century Russian folk tales. The story of the Devil's relentless pursuit of a soldier-deserter, the composition has been described as a "tour de force . . . containing, helter-skelter, a fake tango, a mock ragtime, a sarcastic two-step, a sublimated czardas, a discordant chorale . . ." London's Melos Ensemble accompanies Robert Helpmann as the Devil (he also choreographed the performance); Brian Phelan (soldier); Svetlana Beriosova, prima ballerina of Britain's Royal Ballet (princess); and Anthony Nicolls, narrating in rhyme. (Rerun; 50 min.)

7 13 LOVE, AMERICAN STYLE (C)

1. Mme. Zygmundt (Vivian Vance) is a medium with a mission: she plans to marry her client, the widowed Mr. Barry (George Gobel). Complication: a well-endowed—and much younger—blonde (Paula Stewart). 2. The battle for ownership of a brass bed involves Peter (Roger Perry), his neighbor Barbara (Sue Lyon)—and the rebirth of the colonial courtship custom of bundling. Ellsworth:

Special: "The Battle of East St. Louis" examines an attempt to deal with urban racial tension. East St. Louis, Ill., has a history of racial strife dating back to 1917. This past spring, when another crisis was on the verge of erupting, the city decided to act. Cinema-verite techniques were used to film the safety valve in operation: a three-day encounter session, during which 18 citizens on both sides of the color line attempted to understand each other's problems. The focus is on four of the participants: two white policemen, a black housewife and a black militant. Hughes Rudd reports. (60 min.)

New Year's Day

MORNING-AFTERNOON

JANUARY 1, 1970

New Orleans. Arkansas . . . Offense: a top-notch attack is one reason Arkansas was runner-up in the Southwest Conference, losing only to arch-rival Texas in the regular-season finale. Bill Montgomery is an excellent passer and has an outstanding end in Chuck Dicus. Tommy Burnett heads a solid ground game. Defense: a powerful unit features linebackers Cliff Powell and Lynn Garner. Mississippi . . . Offense: Ole Miss lost some early season games, then got hot and beat highly-regarded SEC rivals LSU and Tennessee. Archie Manning, a stand-out passer and solid runner, is the key to the attack. Good ends include Floyd Franks and Jim Poole. Running is only fair. Defense: experienced, sparked by a fine line including tackle Buz Morrow and end Hap Farber. Chris Schenkel, Bill Flemming and Bud Wilkinson report. For rosters, see page A-64. (Live)

5 10 12 COTTON BOWL (C)

Special: Notre Dame (8-1-1) meets Texas (10-0 and the country's top-ranked team) in the Cotton Bowl at Dallas. Notre Dame . . . Offense: revolves around a good running game and the short passes of Joe Theismann. End Tom Gatewood supplies speed, but muscle is the name of the Fighting Irish game. Defense: a well-balanced unit features stand-out tackle Mike McCoy and linebacker Bob Olson. Texas . . . Offense: an awesome ground game and capable passing game—plus the willingness to gamble—gave Texas the Southwest Conference title over tough Arkansas. The runners are Steve Worster, Jim Bertelsen and Ted Koy. James Street, a capable passer, throws often to fleet Cotton Speyrer. Defense: every bit as tough as the attack. A punishing crew is sparked by back Tom Campbell and his twin, linebacker Mike. Reporters: Lindsey Nelson, Tom Brookshier and Frank Gieber. For rosters, see page A-65. (Live)

13 LET'S MAKE A DEAL—Game (C)1:45 3 4 7 ROSE BOWL (C)

Special: Michigan (8-2), a Big Ten co-titlist, meets Pacific Eight champ USC (9-0-1) in the Rose Bowl at Pasadena. Michigan . . . Offense: features a punishing running game, as Ohio State found to their dismay in Michigan's stunning 24-12 upset. Billy Taylor is a standout, with QB Don Moorhead also strong. Moorhead's a good passer, too, favoring tight end Jim Mandich. Defense: a solid crew. Leaders include back Barry Pierson, who intercepted three times against Ohio State. USC . . . Offense: a fine ground game is combined with an erratic pass attack. Clarence Davis is among the country's best runners; and the passing usually comes through when it must, as witnessed by the Jimmy Jones bomb to Sam Dickerson that edged UCLA in the waning moments. Defense: known as the "Wild Bunch," this outstanding unit is sparked by a quick, tough line. Curt Gowdy and Kyle Rote are the reporters. For rosters, see page A-65. (Live)

PG&E's conservation program guarantees these trees a ripe old age. The trees are part of the healthy green forests on our watershed land. Beautiful land that we protect.

And we do more than guard the land. We guard the air and water, too. We protect marine ecology, plant fish, preserve wild life, build canal crossings for deer, ladders for salmon, boat ramps, campgrounds and picnic areas for people.

California is a lot of beautiful land, sea and air. Let's all keep it that way.

The annual howls over the annual bowls

Controversy is still raging over postseason games

By Melvin Durslag

Athletic director of Georgia Tech and former coach of 13 bowl football teams, Bobby Dodd reached a startling conclusion last year. He announced that college football is playing too many postseason games.

His reasoning was hard to understand, considering that at last count there were no more than 51. Getting a bowl game wasn't easy. Not until 22 people gathered on a street corner could you apply for one.

Dodd confided that after a while at Georgia Tech he wouldn't accept a bowl invitation until his players voted on it. And one time they turned it down because they had been to bowls on two previous years and didn't want to disrupt their Christmas vacation.

Bowl games have been debated for years. Many academicians and some coaches oppose them. Others want them on an unlimited basis, and still others suggest they be restricted.

Fans generally favor bowl games, having nothing better to do on a winter afternoon than watch football on TV or in the flesh. The Living Room A.C. won't be short of bowls this year. The three networks have booked 12 of them.

Arguments against the bowls began more than 20 years ago. The late Red Sanders of UCLA always felt that they represented the most nonamateur aspect of college football. They put undue pressure on coaches, he said, and encouraged teams' excessive recruiting. It was his opinion that the Big Ten dropped its rule against bowl games primarily because recruiters from Southern schools were poaching on Big Ten territory, offering postseason trips as lures.

Others then began to attack the bowl, screaming that kids were being exploited by schools looking for a fast buck. To prevent overemphasis on bowls, some conferences introduced a "no-repeat" policy, meaning a team could not go to a bowl two years in a row. (Mississippi holds the record: 13 straight years in bowl games. Alabama follows with 11.)

Sentiment against bowls is anything but unanimous on the campuses. Ohio State's Woody Hayes feels that a bowl trip is a player's just reward for hard work during the season. USC's John McKay argues that bowls focus attention on the amateur game at a time in which the pros never have offered such formidable competition. "Let's face it," says McKay, who will field a record-breaking fourth-straight Rose Bowl team Jan. 1, "pro football is a competitor."

Many college presidents insist that bowls are a rallying point for alumni, inspiring the grads to pay their alumni dues and remember old Glacier Tech in their wills.

Still others, defending postseason football against charges of commercialism, ask detractors where the profits go. The answer is that they go not into the pants of fast-talking promoters, but into the till of the universities, which use the cash for campus improvements and for carrying parts of the athletic program that aren't self-sustaining. At most schools, this would include everything except basketball.

Bear Bryant, the coach of Alabama, announced a while back that he was interested only in "meaningful" bowls —those which would match teams of consequence. In other words, Bryant no longer was desirous of playing in the Kumquat Bowl merely to put on a TV show. But at the end of the 1969 season, with a record of only 6-4, he accepted an invitation to play Colorado in the Liberty Bowl. It wasn't adjudged the most meaningful game of the year.

Still another voice in the chorus is that of the college-football backer, who insists that the schools are making an enormous mistake by settling for a multitude of bowl games, many of them chicken feed, in place of a national play-off that would bring each season to a dramatic finish.

Basketball, for instance, holds such things as the Far West, Midwest and Eastern regionals, and proceeds satisfactorily in the business of deciding a champion. This is a tidy approach. The loose ends are tied up neatly and no one comes away at season's end with arguments over whether, say, Penn State deserved the national title instead of Texas. In college baseball, tennis, track, golf, swimming, soccer and hockey, the machinery is established for deciding champions. Each season reaches a logical conclusion.

But most of the time in football, the populace is frustrated at the finish. It is rare that an Ohio State and a USC, rated No. 1 and No. 2 in the country last year, get together for what amounts to a national championship game, as the two did in the 1969 Rose Bowl. Most of the conferences are committed each year to certain bowl games, so the chance of matching the top two teams is small under this system.

In clustering its showcase games—the Rose, Sugar, Cotton and Orange Bowls—on New Year's Day, college football not only has one detracting from the other but is losing the suspense that would come from a tournament. The pro-tournament people feel that the two semifinal and the top quarter-final games could fill, on an alternating basis, the Orange, Cotton and Sugar Bowls, and the final could be taken Jan. 1 to the Rose Bowl, oldest and largest of the postseason locations. By not bucking each other on television the bowls would stimulate greater interest.

The minor games get ordinary-to-weak ratings on TV. They are offered for incidental amusement, serving mostly as promotional gimmicks for the communities sponsoring them. Heat from such promoters is believed responsible for the tabling last spring of a national play-off proposal at a meeting of the NCAA Executive Committee. A disgusted coach remarked: "The bowl people are doing what's good for them. We favor what's good for college football."

Shaaron Claridge

She speaks to the police in their own language

By Leslie Raddatz

If you were producing a television cops-and-robbers series like NBC's Adam-12 and wanted a police radio-operator's voice to be heard in your patrol car, what would you do?

You'd hire an actress, of course.

Not if you were Jack Webb, you wouldn't. Executive producer Webb, ever the stickler for realism, got an actual police radio operator for the part—a pretty strawberry blonde named Shaaron Claridge, who comes to Universal Studios once a week before she goes to work on the 4-to-midnight shift at the Los Angeles police station in Van Nuys, Cal. In a "looping room" at the studio she records all the radio calls in that particular week's script. She receives $112, as opposed to the $3.30 an hour she gets from the Los Angeles Police Department.

Says Webb, "We spent a great many weeks listening to several of the ladies in communications at the various divisions and finally agreed that Shaaron's voice typified the average. We knew that no professional performer could begin to duplicate the delivery, and so we chose her. We also selected her over a professional actress because, regardless of research, no writer can phrase a radio call to a police unit as well as one who works communications. Aside from adding what we believe to be a great, authentic sound to Adam-12, Shaaron makes certain that the calls are spoken in the proper radio-communications jargon."

If anyone should know police jargon, it's Shaaron. Not only has she been at the job for nine years, but her husband Frank is a motorcycle officer, his sister is a police radio operator, and his father is a retired police sergeant. As Shaaron says, "I don't really need a script." Only recently the phrase "grand theft auto report" bobbed up in a show. Shaaron changed it to "stolen-vehicle report," which, in case you didn't know it, is right. As for her delivery, she says, "You must have a certain monotone. You can't show emotion—you must keep calm."

Shaaron (whose father stuck in that second "a" when her mother named her, so "he'd have something to do with it"), finds her real job actually more exciting than her work on Adam-12 and the four Dragnet episodes she has also done. She really enjoys her life away from work best of all. This includes scuba diving with her husband—either in Mexico or from their new 25-foot sailboat, appropriately named "Adam-12." The Claridges' trips to Mexico are in a four-wheel-drive pickup truck, which Shaaron also drives to the studio for her weekly stint. "I was flattered when the gatekeeper recognized me just the second time I came in," she says, "but then I realized I was probably the only actress who came to work in a four-wheel-drive pickup."

Life at home is rarely dull, either. Shaaron and her husband live in a four-bedroom house ("We have no kids, but all the rooms are full of scuba gear and stuff") on a sloping half acre in the San Fernando Valley. They share the half acre with a donkey, a goat named Zorba, "who thinks he is a dog," and three real dogs. It has always been Shaaron's ambition to breed Irish setters, and she got two with that in mind. So far, no luck. Recently someone left a pregnant cat on her doorstep, so she now has a cat and kittens—and, since one of the dogs just brought home a rabbit, that, too, has joined the group.

As a policeman's wife, Shaaron has strong feelings about unrest in the cities and on the college campuses. "I'm almost ashamed to say I went to college," she says of her own two years there—one year at Santa Barbara College and another at Valley College in Los Angeles. Before that, she was graduated from North Hollywood High School. Her family had moved to North Hollywood from Santa Monica, where Shaaron was born. She took a PBX course and had decided that would be her regular job, until the opportunity at the Police Department came along.

A third-generation Californian, she has no particular acting ambitions beyond her present, rather accidental, job, although she admits she would like to do some commercials. But, unlike many actresses, she seems to be a contented young lady who enjoys what she is doing, even on the 4-to-midnight-shift, which usually entails a breakfast of hamburgers or chili. She and her husband work the same shift and try to arrange to have their days off coincide for scuba diving or sailing. She rides her bicycle to the store and once a week does the marketing for her blind grandmother. And that is about it—except that once a week, also, she leaves home about an hour earlier than usual by her Mickey Mouse watch, to drive the four-wheel-drive pickup to the studio to do her lines for Adam-12—which, because of Jack Webb's insistence upon the real thing, is why you are reading about her here. A few years ago there was very little left for James Francis Durante to do that was more "colossal" than what he had already done. In nearly 60 years in show business, Da Nose, Da Schnozz, Da Proboscis became almost as prominent as Mount Rushmore. It has lit up Broadway, Hollywood, Las Vegas and the corn flakes commercials. It has been insured for $100,000 by Lloyd's of London and impressed in concrete at Grauman's. In 1959 it was included in "Who's Who." It survived a slow time in the Forties only to come on strong as a TV star in the Fifties, strong enough to win Peabody and Emmy awards and enough citations to wallpaper a small house.

Meantime, Da Mouth underneath Da Nose mangled the language so artfully that it all but put dese, dem, dose and dat into the dictionary. "Dat's my boy!" yelled Jimmy a thousand times. Or, "Dem's da conditions dat prevail!" Miraculously, each new generation was willing to be conned into thinking it was as funny as the last one did. When

A warm-hearted appraisal at 76

Jimmy ordered the band to "Stop da music! Dat trumpet player's usin' only one lip!" some wise-guy producer picked up on the catchline and made it into a radio and TV show. Jimmy paid him no mind. He kept on tearing up pianos just as enthusiastically as he had when he was "Ragtime Jimmy," the scourge of 58th Street, in the days of the Club Durant, a New York speakeasy which flourished for a time during Prohibition. Everybody, including Presidents, wanted to "get into de act," and mostly did. Jimmy played piano with President Truman. "I'm quittin'," he told HST. "You play better'n I do." When he met Rudolph Nureyev, the "famous Ruthian" ballet dancer, he announced, "Dis guy may talk better English dan me, but can he dance better? Never!"

In 1960 he added yet another arrow to his quiver—"If," said Jimmy, "you can imagine a Durante quiverin'." He married Marjorie Little, former Miss New Jersey State Fair, one-time switchboard operator at the Copacabana, and crazy about Jimmy. He was 67; she was 40. "Every couple should take time to loin each udder's faults," explained Da Nose. Then at Christmas 1961 Jimmy became a father. "Colossal!" he yelled as the court approved the adoption of baby Cecilia by a man old enough to be her great-grandfather. "Mr. Durante," said the judge in waiving the age consideration, "is obviously young in heart." Jimmy and CeCe (pronounced Cee-cee) celebrated. "It was moider," he said. "Dat kid simply couldn't believe my nose."

Later he read up on "Dr. Spook" and became the nemesis of the Beverly Hills pediatric corps. "So it's t'ree in da morning and da kid's got da hiccups. My wife says, 'Call the doc.' So I call the doc. 'Doc,' I says, 'yuh gotta come over.' 'But, Jimmy,' he says, 'they'll go away.' 'Doc,' I says, 'put on your pants!' Ten minutes later da kid's got over da hiccups. I gotta call him back. 'Doc,' I says, 'take off da pants.' . . ."

Today Jimmy is 76 and it would seem high time for Da Nose to retire. By the Now Generation's standards, even Jimmy's jokes have worn a little thin. But television seems to like its comedy well-seasoned. As Da Nose explains it: "Dere I was, woikin' da clubs, doin' m'guest shots when I felt like it, an' takin' care of my little CeCe, and what happens? I'm woikin' wid dose wunnerful Lennon sisters every week and makin' a king's transom!"

A more unlikely alliance can hardly be imagined: Durante, an Italian immigrant's son who "got t'rown" out the window of eighth grade one day and never came back, and the singing Lennons, four pristine little girls from Venice, Cal., who had been ushered into womanhood under the watchful eye of Lawrence Welk.

The show had its genesis in 1967 when the girls, by then married and beginning to have babies, woke up to discover that Welk had been paying them scale wages, a pittance compared to what they could get elsewhere. When they left Welk—tearfully, it must be admitted—they had no trouble collecting "top of the show" (about $7500) doing guest shots for Andy Williams, Ed Sullivan and Hollywood Palace. They also collected an ABC contract.

The trouble was that ABC didn't know what to do with them. They were very big in the Midwest but not so hot in the Big City. Their skirts were more maxi than mini. Their musical repertoire might be described as latter-day Nora Bayes. They were forever making statements to the effect that raising a family was their first job, while their career was "unimportant." The one childless Lennon, Kathy, when asked when she planned to have a baby, replied serenely, "It is up to God." The whole thing made ABC extremely nervous, so nervous that the contract included an "Act of God" clause in reverse, which would allow ABC to cancel out in the event of too many babies.

The man destined to save the day for ABC was none other than James Francis Durante. Jimmy had worked with the girls before, doing personal appearances in Anaheim, Cal. "I looked, I saw," explains Jimmy. "An' what I saw I liked. I love dem kids." Meantime ABC had decided to hazard a Lennon Sisters special. By a happy whim—and some backstage maneuvering by the William Morris Agency—executive producer Harold Cohen and his two young producers, Bernie Kukoff and Jeff Harris, hit upon Da Nose as guest star. They decided to bridge the Generation Gap with comedy. Jimmy, in wig and sideburns, played the Electric Nose to the girls' Four Hankies in one of the most bizarre "rock groups" ever conceived. However, the result looked and felt "right"; Jimmy's more raffish qualities helped take the curse off the Lennons' inexhaustible Goodness; and management, taking note that →

A medically sound treatment for most painful hemorrhoids

First, stop the pain. And the itching. Nupercainal® is a unique combination of lubricants plus the most effective topical pain reliever available without a prescription. It relieves pain and itching fast. Provides much longer lasting relief. Nupercainal also soothes inflamed tissue—in turn helps the natural healing process. Moreover Nupercainal facilitates natural movements.

Next, doctors recommend, use common sense. Stay off spicy, highly seasoned foods. Avoid constipation and what causes it. Such as lack of rest and bad eating habits. Stay regular. Sitz baths aid comfort and natural healing.

Above all, use caution. Nupercainal brings relief in most cases and for most types of hemorrhoids. But if symptoms are severe, persistent, frequently recurrent...if there is rectal bleeding...do see your doctor.

Caution, Common Sense, & Nupercainal

Jimmy's long friendships with the Hopes and Bennys of the world could help solve their guest-star problem, quickly signed Da Nose for the "king's transom" of $12,500 a week.

Only one problem remained. Theoretically the show belonged to the Lenons, and Jimmy was merely along for the ride. Yet protocol demanded equal billing. The Lenons were too baby-oriented to care. Jimmy was old and wise enough not to worry. Only the agent cared, and it was the agent who came up with the jaw-busting title of Jimmy Durante Presents the Lennon Sisters Hour. Jimmy could find the humor even in that: "Wid Durante presentin', watch out, Laugh-In! We're breedin' down your neck."

Jimmy could find other things, too. Like the right words to say to the sisters when their father, Bill Lennon, was senselessly murdered last summer. Jimmy made a special trip up from Del Mar for the funeral, and, slipping easily into his impromptu role of father figure, helped sustain his young friends through a devastating period. "Without him," says someone who was there, "I'm not sure the girls would have made it."

The week I saw Jimmy, he was "wookin'" on show No. 8. At lunch in the ABC commissary, Jimmy orders "boint toast" with his scrambled eggs because he says carbon is good for you. He is particularly happy because another old-timer, Martha Raye, is "wookin'" with him, and some of the dialogue is "cherce":

Martha: Do you speak French?

Jimmy: Si, si.

Martha: But that's Spanish.

Jimmy: Howyah like dat; I speak Spanish too.

Not exactly Neil Simon, but Jimmy will manage to give it a little of the old zingaroo. Meantime he fills me in on the Durante life-style. He is in "pif-fect" health. He has never taken an aspirin in his life. His exercise consists mainly of walking from his box to the $2 window at the race track. Once in a while he checks in with Dr. John Egan in Beverly Hills: "He keeps tellin' me I got da blood pressure of a twen'-year-old. It's disgustin'."

He talks about CeCe, who is the center of "everything." Jimmy plays with her, walks with her, picks her up at Marymount school whenever he can. "We have a lotta laughs. Kids. They're funny. She knows more at 8 dan I knew at 16, so help me God. When they cry . . . something inside you . . . you wanna bust."

Being separated from his family is the basic conflict of Jimmy's life. When Jimmy was young, he married a showgirl named Jeanne Olsen, basically a homebody who longed to see more of her husband. Jimmy's manager and old partner, the late Lou Clayton, was a success-obsessed firebrand who drove his easygoing friend relentlessly. When Jeanne fell ill and finally died in 1943 after a long illness, Jimmy was haunted by feelings that he had neglected her for his career. His friends think that this may be one reason why it took him so long to marry again. They are aware that when Jimmy says, "Good-night, Mrs. Calabash, wherever you are," he is really talking to Jeanne. Jimmy has never talked much about it. He has said Calabash is a name he noticed on a sign during a trip he and Jeanne made to California in 1931.

Although it hurts Jimmy to be away from CeCe and Marge, he does at least 16 weeks a year in the clubs and appears at benefits. For Jimmy, performing is like eating peanuts. "Whadya goin' to do?" he is saying. "I don't need da money. I need da woik. Sitting around the house, just lingerin' on, waitin' for what? My God, I'd die."

Later we go out to the Beverly Hills house. Jimmy is impatient to get there and "rehoise" with George Finley, his long-time accompanist. When he gets there he can't remember Finley's name.

Finley smiles. "He always gets it right on my paycheck." The house is white and blue inside. It looks like a woman's house. It is.

It seems that Marge is the doer of the family, involved in school projects, running the household, making social engagements, caring for CeCe and, as much as anybody can, running Jimmy. Jimmy is the casual one, greeting old friends who may come by, dropping down to his music-publishing company on Wilshire, which hasn't published anything in years (he keeps it around in case he hasn't anything better to do), or maybe just sunning himself by the pool, which he seldom, if ever, goes in. Jimmy by the pool is quite a "spectacle" in his trunks, handkerchief knotted at four corners over his head, swatter in hand and waving at flies, real or imagined.

Jimmy's toughest day is Saturday, taping day. He gets in around noon and if he's lucky gets out by 9 that night. I get there around 2, to find the set furiously overpopulated. There is Jimmy's press agent. He talks about the Durante "legend." There is the Lennons' press agent. He talks about the Lennons' "new image." There is Diane Lennon. She says, "People say there is a Generation Gap. There is none." There are the producers. They say things like, "We are dealing with the part of the Now Generation that you don't read about in the newspaper." There is the executive producer, Harold Cohen, who is sure that his audience is going to "flip out" over his "sleeper." There is Fred Apollo, from William Morris, who explains that he is there 10 hours a day to "be sure things run smoothly and to keep the show from getting in a loss position."

Jimmy pays no attention to that kind of stuff. He dozes in his dressing room, dressed in turban and sash for a Rudolph Valentino bit. (" . . . And a big salami to you! I'm Sheik Omar Durante, numba-one cat in da desert.") A top hat and a gambler's hat sit on top → of the TV set, reminding him of work still to be done. Richard, the dresser, hovers near-by. Cohen and Apollo wander in and out. An assistant sticks his head in. "It'll be two minutes, Jimmy," he says.

Jimmy suddenly looks old.

As the day wears on, Jimmy seems to gather momentum. One senses it now: that instinctive ability to rise to the occasion. An occasion seems to be developing. The sketch with Martha Raye is too long. It lacks snap. He and Martha are going to have to take extreme measures to pull it off. And the problem seems to inspire Da Nose to talk.

"Writin' is very important," he muses. "If they don't put de woids in your mouth, whadya gonna do? But y'know something? Yuh gotta go in with a solid foundation. Then maybe somethin' happens on da spur of da moment. Somethin' yuh can't plan. Den yuh know what to do with it."

"A performer knows whether he's good or bad. He knows. Sometimes y'go out there, yuh got good material, yuh got confidence, and yuh got nothin'. On a stage, even if yuh louse it up, yuh can do somethin' different da next time. But on TV, if it's bad, it's bad." He pauses. "Dat's why the stage is my real home."

Minutes later he is on-camera. He and Martha do things they never dreamed of doing in rehearsal. The two old pros move like prize fighters, feeling each other out—an ad-lib here, a bit of business there. It may not be commedia dell'arte or even Tommy Smothers, but it gets the job done.

Afterwards, one of the writers sticks his head in the dressing room. "Terrific, Jimmy," he says.

Jimmy smiles. "She knew what to do with it," he says. Then he is out the door.

Now... Plastic Cream Invention Revolutionizes Denture Wearing

*Artificial teeth never felt

For the first time science now offers a unique plastic cream that holds false teeth—both 'uppers' and 'lowers'—almost the way Nature herself holds natural teeth. It forms an elastic membrane that holds dentures as they've never been held before.

It's called FIXODENT—a revolutionary discovery for daily home use. Because FIXODENT is the first denture adhesive that's not a gum but a special plastic with this unique holding power, it's actually protected against imitation by U. S. Patent #3003988.

FIXODENT's elastic formula not only holds dentures firmer... it holds them more comfortably, too. Because it's elastic, FIXODENT lets you bite harder without pain. It resists liquids. One application may last 'round the clock.

Dentures that fit are essential to health. So see your dentist regularly. And get easy-to-use FIXODENT today.

JOSEPH FINNIGAN REPORTS:

The Pat Paulsen Half-a-Comedy Hour, which will make its debut on ABC on Jan. 22, will feature interviews with cartoon characters as well as people. The first two interviews are with Daffy Duck and HUBERT HUMPHREY . . . KEN CURTIS and MILBURN STONE, who usually tour the fair circuit when Gunsmoke is not in production, are bringing their musical act to RED SKELTON's show for a February segment . . . Now that she's free from regular dunking and socking on Laugh-In, JUDY CARNE is hitting the variety-show trail as a guest artist. She'll sing on ANDY WILLIAMS' show Jan. 3 and make another appearance on the show later.

E.G. MARSHALL is in the first segment of Paris 7000, GEORGE HAMILTON's new ABC series, which replaces the ill-fated The Survivors. Marshall, who is also a doctor on The Bold Ones, has a narration chore on his schedule too. He'll narrate NBC's Monogram documentary "The Manhunters," which focuses on the search for clues to man's early history . . . Medical Center is beginning to look a little like Family Affair: JAMES DALY's daughter TYNE recently worked with her father in the series, and now CHAD EVERETT's wife, SHELBY GRANT, has been signed for a part.

TAB HUNTER, back in Hollywood after living on his Oregon ranch for the past several years, portrays a bandit in "SFX," an NBC World Premiere movie that is also a series pilot for PERNELL ROBERTS, who plays the part of an airport manager. VAN JOHNSON and CLU GULAGER are also in the cast . . . MICHAEL PARKS will direct the last segment of . . . Then Came Bronson when the series winds up this season's production in Monterey, Cal.

News from the world of sports: LAURO SALAS, lightweight boxing champion in 1952, fights LARRY STORCH in "The Prizefighter and the Lady," the Jan. 5 episode of The Doris Day Show . . . MERLIN OLSEN of pro football's Los Angeles Rams plays "an amorous mountain man" in the Jan. 17 episode of Petticoat Junction. Olsen, a gigantic defensive tackle, certainly qualifies as a mountain.

GARY COLLINS, who chugged across the screen on Iron Horse a few seasons back, is playing a private eye in The Wileys, a mystery-comedy pilot that Paramount is making for ABC. PENNY FULLER plays Collins' wife . . . PAUL HENNING, producer of The Beverly Hillbillies, is working on a pilot for CBS, and the project has "top secret" stamped all over it . . . PAT HARRINGTON Jr. didn't stay out of work long after Mr. Deeds Goes to Town was canceled. Harrington is starring in Broker Lady, a CBS pilot about a real-estate man with a lady assistant (MAUREEN ARTHUR).

GEORGE GOBEL donated 15 volumes of scripts and 196 kinescopes of his old series to the University of Wyoming . . . LUCILLE BALL won such high ratings with the shows she shot on location that she's planning more for next season. Japan and Europe are possible shooting sites.

Your first stereo should be good enough to be your last.

That's why we came up with the RE-7700.

An FM/AM and FM stereo with slide controls you can adjust just like the professionals. The RE-7700 has automatic tuning that zeros in on stations with super accuracy.

And FET that pulls in distant stations.

There's a Stereo Eye that tells when you're listening to stereo. And an FM stereo switch that locks out all but the stereo stations.

No matter what you decide to listen to, it'll come through two 6½-inch woofers. And two 2½-inch tweeters.

A full 18 watts of music power.

There's also an output jack for headphones, an input jack for tape, and another for an automatic turntable.

Which leads us to the optional piece of equipment we've included in this ad.

The RD-7703. A 12-inch, 4-speed automatic record changer with a special device that reduces record wear. A smoke-grey dust cover and sapphire stylus are included at no extra charge.
